entire of itself..."

" . . . every man is a piece of the Continent, a part of the main; if a clod be washed away by the sea, Europe is the less, as well as if a promontory were, as well as if a manor of thy friends or of thine own were; any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind . . . ," and the life of every part of this College increases us, for Aquinas is a part of the community of man.

That Aquinas is an integral part of the community is demonstrated by campus participation in current events. A visit by Gerald Ford and Gordon Cooper to the campus heightens interest in the National space program. A demonstration march in sympathy with Negroes in Selma, Alabama, is strongly supported by the whole College. Errol Harvey, detours traffic outside the Fulton Street gates to facilitate an impromptu campaign speech by Hubert Humphrey. Later, students and faculty meet to watch the election returns together.

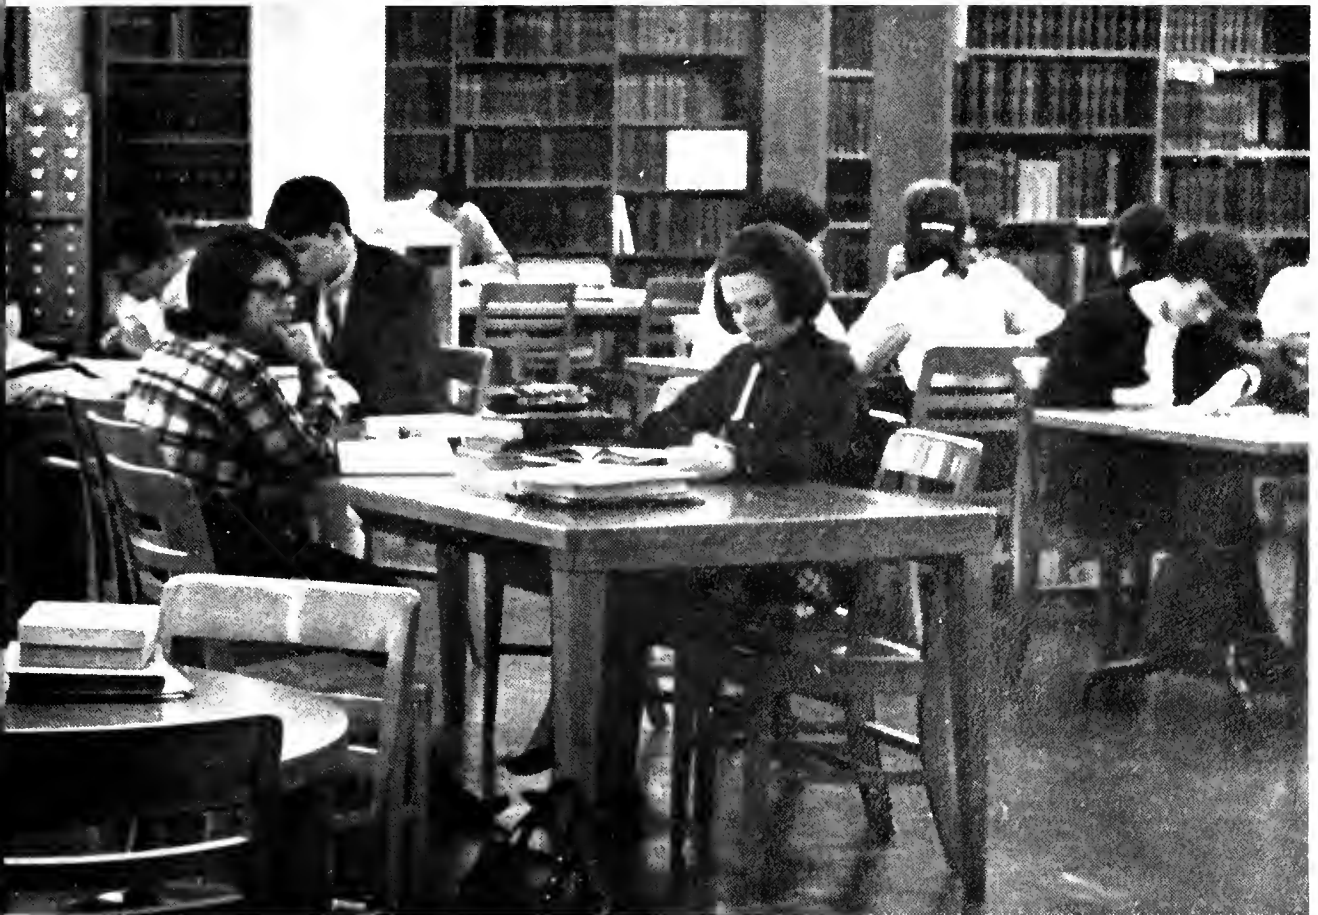

A continent is not a trackless place; paths extend over its entire surface. These paths are created by the individual's total participation in the community of men.

Each path is intertwined with another so that a unified network emerges as man becomes completely involved with every other man.

Here, at Aquinas College, students are brought together through the efforts of Administration and Faculty to work, to study and to recreate for the purpose of building a more perfect Christian society.

Led by the pervading spirit of aggiornamento, George La Mountain, and a number of his confreres, inaugurated a series of faculty-student discussions this year. The topics ranged from "The Layman in the Social Order" to "Student-Teacher Relationships," but the unifying theme that ran throughout all of the discussions was the necessity for individual involvement with society on all levels. Domanimento, everybody!

Rich Seymour heads the Programming Committee, Chris Nawrocki, Leo Mac Innes, Cheri Mann, and Fran Novak, in discussions concerning future movies to be shown.

Pat doesn't know the deck's been loaded!

The newly-built Regina Hall houses 150 women students.

The dorm Christmas party found a few girls adding finishing touches to gifts they had made.

Willow Brook is "home" for seventeen senior women. Recently purchased, its grounds include the campus swimming pool. Besides Regina and Willow Brook, we have two off-campus women's residences: Sienna and Lourdes Hall.

St. Joseph the Worker Hall, opened in September, houses 150 men students.

Bumper pool is a favorite pastime of coeds seeking distraction from study.

Study does take much time and often a helping hand.

Bishop Woznicki of Saginaw with Monsignor Bukowski dedicated the new dorm to St. Joseph the Worker in October.

Monsignor and Father Sharkey bless the Crucifix in the lounge.

WXTO, our on-campus radio station, operates under the direction of Father Hugh Michael Beahan, Diocesan Director of Radio and Television. Business Manager Fred Beahan, Traffic Manager Dave Huhn, and Program Director James Drummond combine efforts for the purpose of providing their listeners with first-rate radio entertainment.

business club

The Business Club, which sponsored a hayride early in the year, is represented by its moderators Mr. Casey and Mr. Bennett, president Mike Mazurek, and vice president Tom Gavin.

politics

Humbly and modestly moderated by G. F. J. La Mountain, young Democrats gleefully "cooperate" with various efforts of opposing numbers to insure a democratic society.

The Young Republican Club meets—hopefully — to plan a new strategy.

Election Eve found members of all parties and various other outsiders gathered together for the common good.

social science forum

The Social Science forum is instrumental to interested students, in that its purpose is to discuss problems of modern day social living. Topics covered may range from the economic aspects of modern living to a discussion of political candidates for the Presidency. The forum gives the students an awareness of the significance of national and international events.

biology club

The laboratories in Albertus Hall are "headquarters" for the Biology Club whose officers are: John Popma, president; Karen Van Loo, treasurer; Dick Buttrick, secretary; and Dan Radawski, vice president.

lambda iota tau

Lambda Iota Tau, the literary honor society, is moderated by Sister M. Bride. Its officers are Fred Sebulske, president; and Cathy Kavanagh, secretary-treasurer.

Discussions are held at the Gate-House where appreciation for the mind of man abounds.

Assistant Editors Cathy Kavanagh and Angie Lee, meet with Lillian Zemla to plan layouts and copy.

As moderator, Mr. Lenox, spends much of his free time helping the staff. It is chiefly because of his interest and determination that this yearbook has been successfully published.

Sincerest thank-yous are extended to all those people not pictured who helped in every way imaginable to make this yearbook possible. This unselfish interest on the part of everyone involved demonstrates that the Christian commitment to society is very much alive on the Campus of Aquinas College.

the happiest group of people to work with includes Marilyn Martin, Judy Longcore, Mary yman, Jim Prawdzik and John Wozniak.

Photographer Frank Kolenda and his assistant Paul Douglas shot the works on this last picture of Editor Marianne Kane.

Mrs. Mann and Mr. Pulliam, members of the "lower level information office" are responsible for seeing many of the Aquinas publications all the way to the printer.

ORBIT, the school literary magazine, gives budding Aquinas writers and artists a chance to display their talents. Marilyn Fanaly, Carol Lipscomb, and Cheryl Nahs scout for valuable material.

Sister Bride then helps to select various materials for publication.

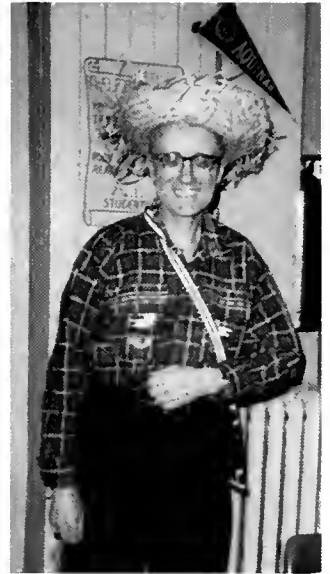

aquinas weekly

The Aquinas Weekly is a compilation of current "Kampus Kapers" and an outlet for interested student opinion — "Kapering" around the Student Senate office are Editors Cheri Mann, Judy Fudold, and Fred Sebulske.

Marianne Zarimba and Janet Esch do the typing while Mr. Remington moderates.

spanish club

Mr. Soler, moderator of the Spanish Club, meets with officers: Sue Gilles, president; Longino Gonzales, vice-president; Tom Saenz, secretary; Tony Scaturro, treasurer.

The club's "Fiesta" featured our own Nancy and Elsa who entertained with typical Spanish "gusto"

It certainly is a happy group that will be going south.

Monsignor shows off souvenirs of his summer spent in Guatemala.

"I hope this works ...," Leo thinks as he plays tapes for an OPLA dance.

As candy sales mount, excitement rises in anticipation of another fruitful summer to be spent in Guatemala.

French Club officers are: Mike Broas, vice-president; Marilyn Martin, treasurer; Jim Prawdzik, president; Sister Norbert, moderator; Sue Roberts, secretary.

At a regular meeting of "Le Cercle Francais," members watch movies and slides taken on the French excursion to Quebec.

Madame Van Der Veen informs students of a forthcoming meeting as posted on the bulletin board.

le cercle français

During semester break, the French Club sponsored a trip to Quebec City. The travellers arrived in time to greet the Bonhomme in festivities which marked the opening of the Winter Carnival. Skiing and "livinitup" were major pastimes of the wayward twelve. In April the club presented the play LEOCADIA for Carousel Week. Below right: Director, Kathy Ofenstein, guides Paula and Donna in their roles.

Rita Mayan, Carol Feinauer, Jasui Milanowski, and Bob Schmiedicke, officers of the German Club meet in the absence of their moderator, Dr. W. W. Prange.

Members of the Club view slides of their previous doings.

Moderator Lee Jacokes and President Jim Doyle discuss future plans for the newly formed and long-awaited Psychology Club with other officers and members. The Club intends to concentrate on current developments in the field of psychological theory and research.

international relations

The International Relations Club seeks to provide Aquinas with information about foreign countries, issues of international significance, and decisions of the UN concerning them. The Club, headed by Maurice Farhat, plans discussions and talks by guest speakers to clarify issues and help make evaluations.

As part of a national program, the Aquinas People to People program, headed by Eleanor Shick and Chuck Leik, functions to bring about a knowledge and understanding of other peoples and cultures. They try to do this by giving movie and slide showings and sponsoring the International dinners.

Barbara Holzer was this year's recipient of the St. Catherine Medal, presented every year by Kappa Gamma Pi. The award goes to a Junior woman student who is outstanding in scholarship, service, and leadership in the school, which fits Barbara to a "T."

YCS strives to develop Christian leaders, to form the Christian conscience, to work toward changing social institutions in order to make it possible for all people to live a fully human and Christian life.

Book Sale

The student book sale, which originally began as a small part of the Carousel of Arts, became one of its most popular elements this year. The sale was so successful that the extra profits have been put into a special library fund for the school.

Shoe Shine

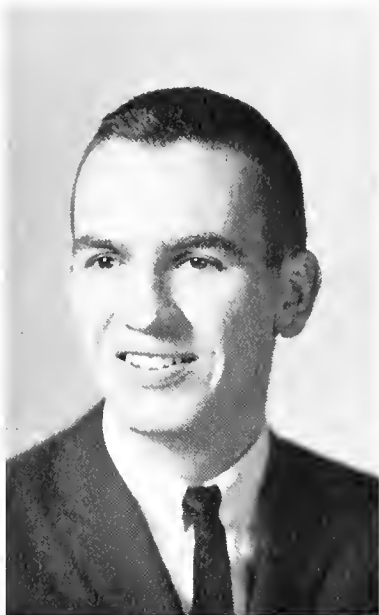

The strains of the top forty and the smell of shoe polish permeated the lower floor of Aquinas as the annual shoe shine took place once again. The money made by shoe shines goes to the missions.

Guest poet Brother Antoninus shares his poetry, and the philosophy inherent in the poems, with his audience. As he said, he had the audience "in the palm of his hand," right where he wanted them.

The freshman brings with him to college all that he has done and all that he has been. With his previous experiences to assist him, he will choose the path he is to follow. The outlines which have been set for him are broad; within their framework his first choice of paths will be made. This first setting out may be uncertain. He may finally choose to follow a route differing in direction from the one which earlier had seemed right for him. His first year will be one of many decisions; his progress will depend on his ability to understand and to relate to one another a great variety of materials whose purpose will be to make clear the way to his goal.

With his one year of successful college work behind him, the sophomore looks forward to advancing himself toward an end which seems much more real and attainable to him now than perhaps it did only a few months before. He will be expected to know and now be familiar with many matters and situations to which his past year of experience had merely introduced him. He will be called upon to devote much time and serious consideration to studies which may seem at first to be unrelated to a final goal which is becoming clearer and clearer to him. The success of his advancement will depend to a great extent on his ability to "put first things first," by not only selecting a major field of interest, but also by organizing into a profitable body of knowledge all of the materials to which he will find himself exposed.

With his "path-travel" behind him, the junior, with a determination developed by his exposure to the studies and experiences of two years' work, moves on to a road whose directions are more clearly marked — one on which he can feel more certain of himself. One of the measures of an upperclassman's maturity will be his ability to progress steadily in his major field while he continues to broaden his knowledge in the area of studies which surround it. He will develop his talent for concentrating on one field while he consciously keeps his mind open and alert to the adjacent areas of study which his liberal education offers to him.

The ribbon-cutting ceremony at the Inaugural Ball signified the opening of Gala Weekend. At the dance, Tammy Paul and Pat Osbourne were crowned King and Queen of the festivities. They were attended by Jasiu Milanowski and Sue Weber, Freshmen; Gene Smary and Kathy Delahanty, Sophomores; and Joe Burns and Chris Nawrocki, Juniors.

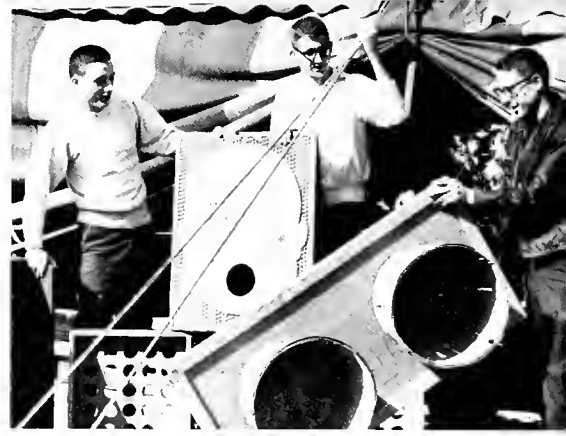

Booth construction for the Carnival began early Saturday. The tug-of-war, held in the afternoon, provided a welcome break from all the scotch-taping and poster-making under the tent. That night the Lowland Three (pictured at right), together with the Rick Frigo Jazz Trio and Billy Wallace entertained at the Variety show — Ameriscope.

On Sunday the Campus became the land of Gala as teachers were dunked, teddy-bears were won, and polkas were played.

This weekend of fun was enjoyed by everyone. Special credit should go to Co-chairmen Frank D'Amico and Anne Locke, to entertainment chairman Fred Sebulske and to all of the students who worked with them to make the weekend a grand success.

homecoming

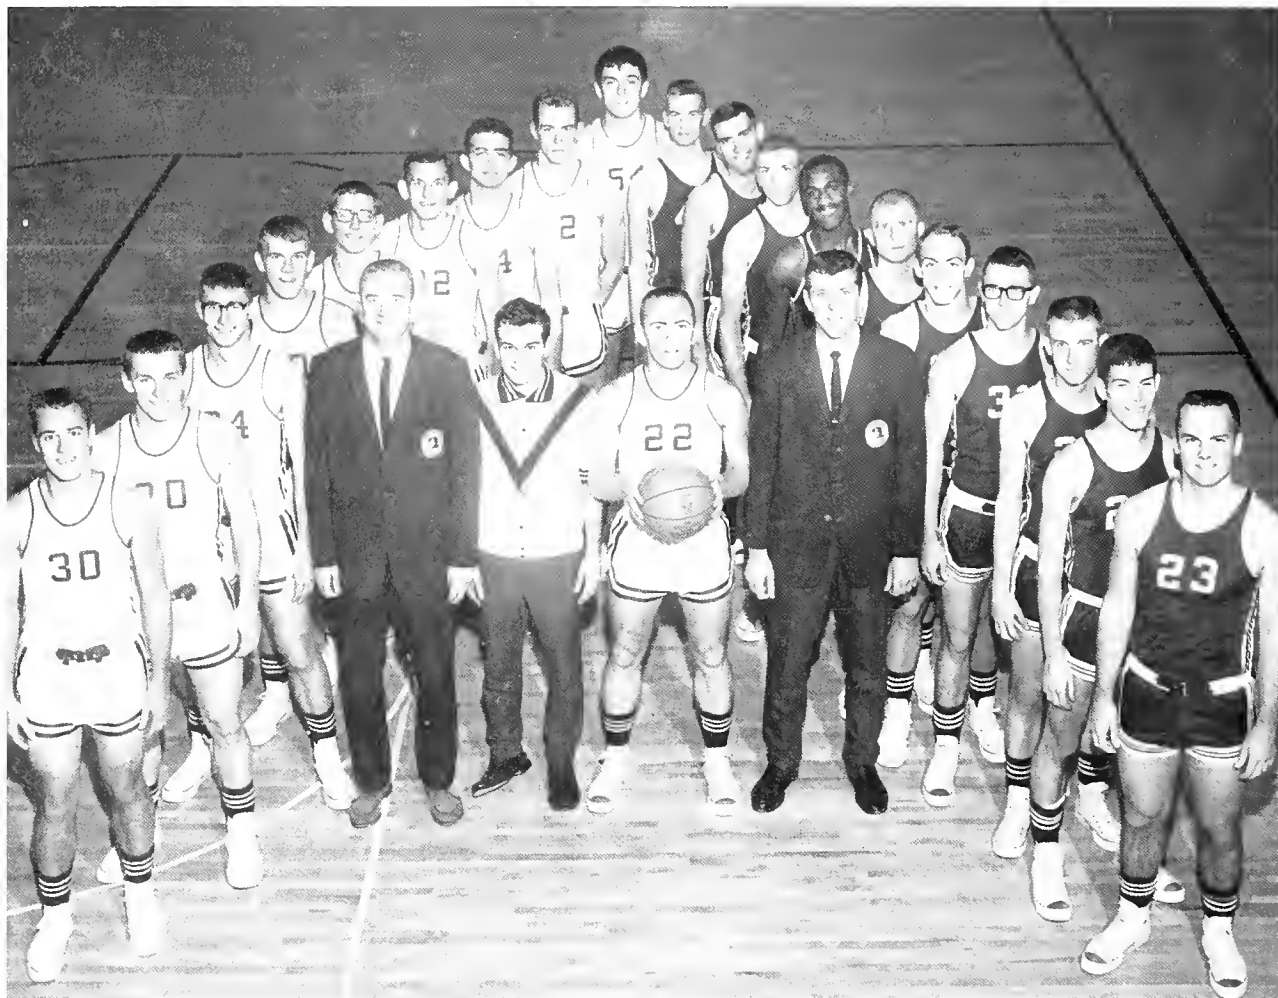

Queen Joan Valliere and her court; Marilyn Kendall, Paula Kralovec, and Judy Kralovec.

Car caravans, cheering, hearty clapping, breathless waiting and Joan Valliere is crowned Queen of the Homecoming festivities. A kiss bestowed is a Tommies' wish for continued remembrance of high-spirited students bursting with enthusiasm as they inspired a team to triumph. Soon, softly chordal strains meet with gay whispers and the clink of ice in captivity, as dancing proceeds....fond memories that will live in the heart.

With a tough schedule of twenty-two games, the Aquinas Tommies came up with a 10-12 record. Fine ball-handling and strategy by Gary Fewless, Joe O'Toole, Denny Alexander, and Mike Flood plus the promising underclassmen made the challengers work hard for their points. In leading the Tommies to their victories, Red Dornbos, in his first year as their coach, did a great job.

"meet the tommies"

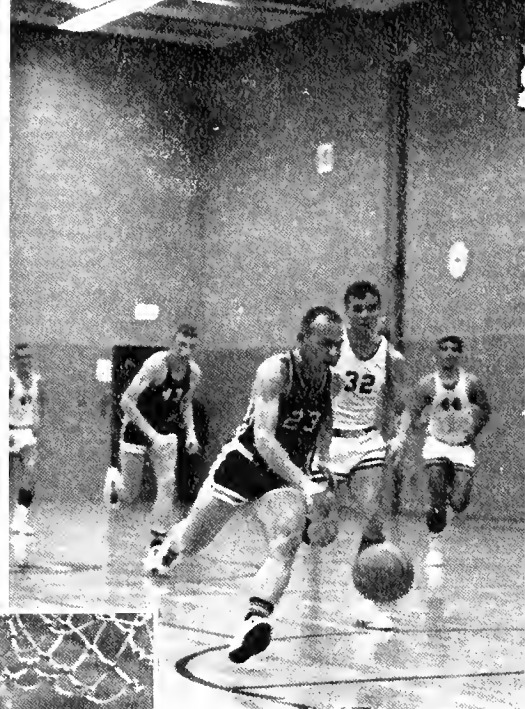

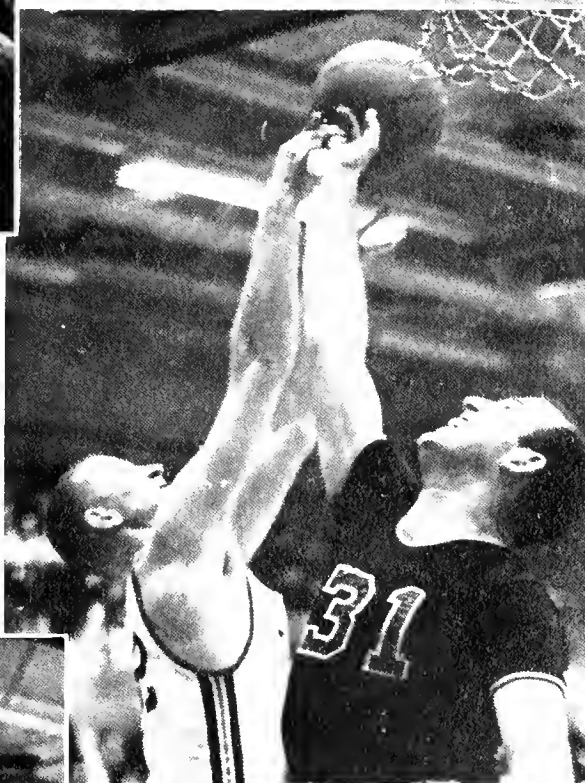

On November 20, the Aquinas basketball team was introduced, and an exhibition basketball game was played in a meeting at the West Catholic gym. The student body learned the players' positions and saw the men function as a team.

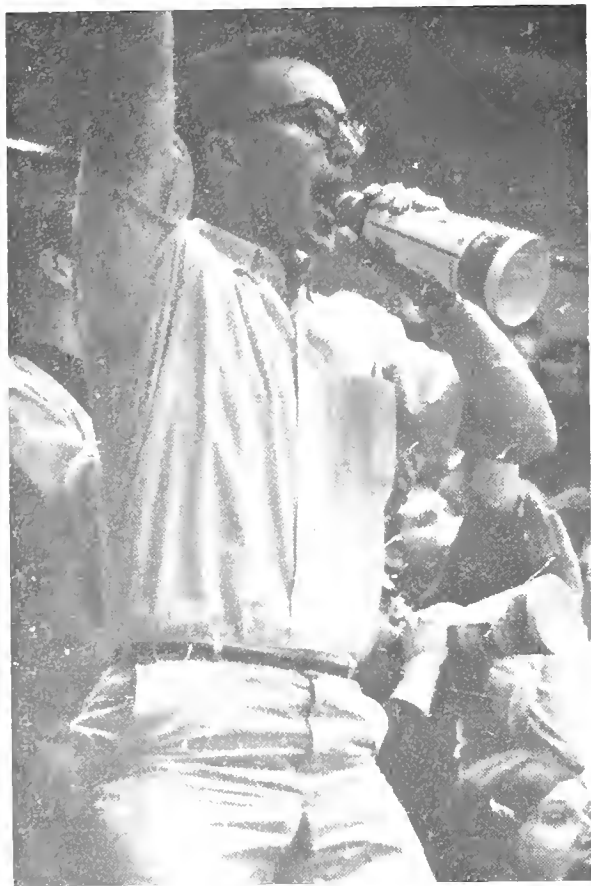

Fast breaks, strong rebounding and tense moments filled each Aquinas game, and even captured the attention of the very young.

Janet, Gene, Sue and Bette comprise the Boosters Club which cooperates with the Cheerleaders in perpetuating school spirit, organizing "meet the Tommies" night, and arranging for buses for transportation to the games. The support of the student body is tremendously important for the success of the team.

With a record of 20 wins and 6 losses, the Aquinas Cross Country team, headed by Red Dornbos, made a fine showing in only its second year of existence. The top five placers, Tom Karr, John Haslem, John Cybulskis, Gene Kasper, and Dave Connell with the rest of the team traveled to Wheaton College for the small college section of the NCAA meet where they tested Aquinas strength against the others and finished well in the field. Their stamina, team effort, and spirit are a credit to the school.

Art is the manifestation of the whole human being. Members of the Art Department, under the guidance of Sister M. Lois, O.P., displayed their talents during the Carousel of the Arts for the benefit and enjoyment of the whole college community.

a man for all seasons

The Aquinas Players presented four performances of Robert Bolt's A MAN FOR ALL SEASONS at Grand Rapids' new Civic Theatre before going "on the road" to Bay City for the fifth and final presentation of this powerful drama depicting the inward and outward struggle of a man, Sir Thomas More (but really any man), to preserve his integrity in the face of seemingly insurmountable obstacles.

This student production, under the direction of Sister Mary de Chantal and Jack Rang, delighted its audiences composed not only of students, faculty, and parents but also an ever-increasing number of Grand Rapids theatre-goers who have come to expect serious, mature presentations from our Players.

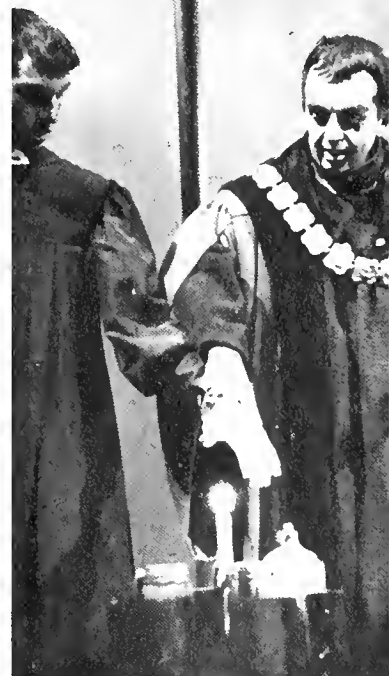

"I sent him a cup, sir, an Italian silver cup I bought in Lincoln..."

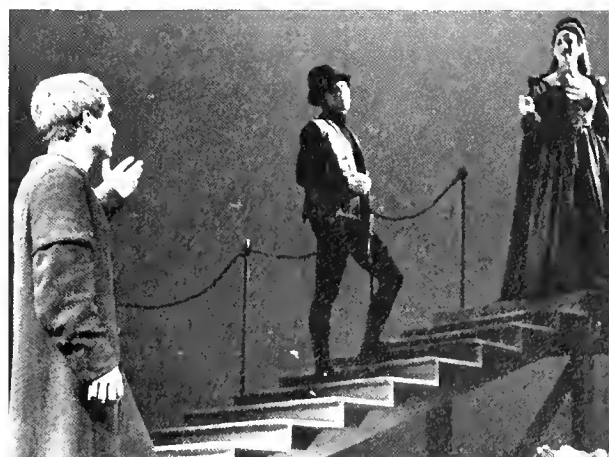

"And he'll have to think that somewhere back along your pedigree - A bitch got over the wall."

"No man can serve two masters, Steward." "No indeed, sir, I serve one."

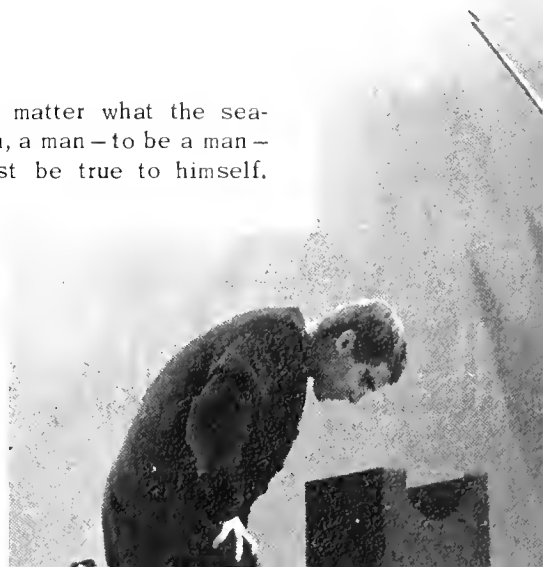

"Doesn't know how to be frightened? why, then he never put his hand in a candle... Did he?"

"Alice, goodbye, my love!"

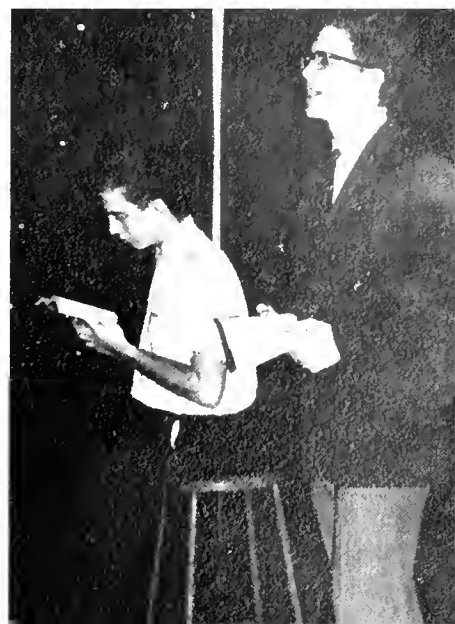

No matter what the season, a man - to be a man - must be true to himself.

Rehearsals begin as cast and crew prepare for the spring production of Shakespeare's TWELFTH NIGHT.

music department

Sister Annette, the moderator of the Music Club, and its officers, Fred Wilcome, Connie Kiel, and Pat Steve, think musical things.

The Music Department is a place of many sounds — the sound of piano music wafting out the windows, the sound of the ensemble practicing, the sound of the students singing, the sound of German softly spoken.

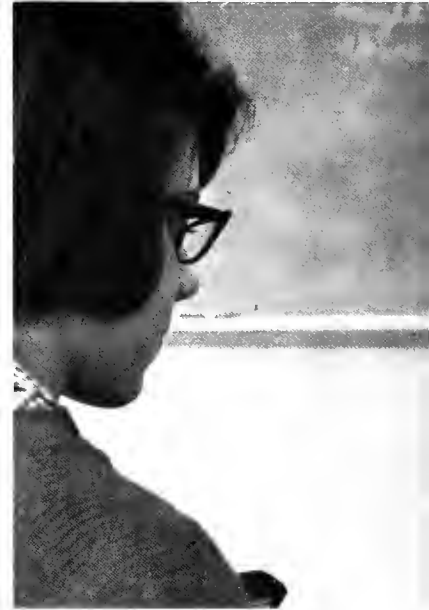

Candy Kane turns pages for Klaus, as the Chorus sings for Mr. Ed Marciniak, recipient of the Aquinas Award.

ground-breaking

No man labors alone. Many helping hands join together to remove the first shovelful towards the new Student Center. Each man's participation contributes immeasurably towards the creation of new avenues of activity.
